Thoughts From Doug

What beautiful fall weather we are having! I hope that you are able to take some time out, at least several times during the week, if not daily, to just walk outside and breathe. Notice the color of the sky and the leaves and the shadows caused by the position of the autumnal sun. Take intentional deep breaths—and feel the crispness of the air. For some reason, fall speaks to me of slowing down and being intentional in seeing. Perhaps it is because, after a long summer, autumn forces us to realize that things do not always stay the same; that we do not live in a permanent summer. And maybe that causes us, on some level, to be more involved in conversation with God. Even though fall is about dying, it can be lifegiving for us. Noticing the grass (that, thankfully does not have to be mowed so frequently), the leaves and the trees, can teach us about fully trusting God. All of creation seems to so naturally, calmly, and purposefully lie down and rest into the dormancy of the approaching winter. And we, too, as we learn to live fully in God's presence each day, being faithful to be who God has called us to be in the summer and fall of our lives, will find ourselves being less anxious about life. We will worry less about things that are out of our control; we will be gifted with the wisdom of valuing those things that are most important; we will live in the present of each day's beauty, recognizing the gift of each loved one in our lives; and we will live so fully and richly that we will be comfortable, whenever our time comes for our last breath, releasing ourselves into the trust of God's care. We will be able to pray the prayer of the psalmist each and every night: I will both lie down and sleep in peace, for you alone, O LORD, make me lie down in safety. (Psalm 4:8)

Questions:

- How would you describe to a child God's purposes in making people? What would you point to when explaining the difference between humans and animals?
- What steps do you take so that you can guard the relationships in your life?
- How would vou advise a newly married couple to nurture mutual submission through trust?
- What is the best way to teach the valuable lesson about sexual restraint so other believers put it into practice?

Attention Church Committees

At last month's Deacons and Church Council Meetings, it was agreed that we would ask all church committees to remain the same through next year, thereby adding one year to your time of service. So, the Nominating Committee is asking everyone on a committee to "stay put" through Sept. 2021. Please contact and inform a committee member if you do not wish to do so. Thank you for holding on with us as best we can during these days.

All Saints Day

Sunday, November 1, we will be observing All Saints Day. We will give thanks to God for the lives of two Hardwick Baptist members who have entered life eternal since All Saints Day 2019: Katie Bainbridge and Lamar Guy. For those who, out of an abundance of caution, will be watching the service from home-we encourage you to gather two candles of your own, and light them in memory of Katie and Lamar at the appropriate time in the service

Your faithfulness in continuing to give during these uncertain times is so important. We hope it wont be long before we can get back to full time in-person ministry at HBC, but in the meantime your support is crucial as we monitor pandemic conditions and prepare for that time. You may support HBC by giving online, by mail and by placing your offerings in the offering plates as you enter or depart in-person worship.
